THE MAN WITH A GRIEVANCE.

Most of us go through life with a grievance of some kind, although we may not be quite ready to admit the fact. It may be that contentment is too fair and pure a jewel for the world in general to wear; or yet it may be that we just fancy that such is the case and consequently grow dissatisfied and make no effort to gain possession of it; or yet again it may be that being ignorant of its true merits we do not know it when we see it. It is well nigh impossible, of course, for everyone to be perfectly contented in life, because it is human nature to always want just a little more than we have and to wish that conditions were a little different from what they are. Indeed, we never fully realize how blessed we are in certain circumstances, and it is not until changes come and we are forced to realize that never again can things be as they once were that we begin to see for ourselves how little excuse we had for not being happy and how ill-prepared we are to face the readjustments.

Given, however, even an ordinary appreciation of the fact that we have sufficient cause to be moderately happy we are quite likely to question that happiness and to even look with suspicion upon it. It does not take us long to hunt up a grievance of one sort or another, and as soon as we reach that stage of life we may be sure that we are not adding to the store of our contentment.

If we could live without imagining ourselves injured or discriminated against in any way we should learn the way to that peace of mind and heart which leads to true contentment. It almost seems at times as though some of us take pleasure in going out of our way to make trouble for ourselves as well as others, for he who is weak enough to allow his suspicions to influence his conduct as far as others are concerned invites their unhappiness as well as his own.

Some of us appear to regard our pet grievance as a positive luxury, judging from the apparent delight we take in hugging it to our breasts and warming it into active life. We soon come to regard it as a necessary factor in life and we turn to it for such doubtful comfort as we may be able to derive from it. It is a comfort, however, that lasts for the moment and is soon replaced by more misery and wretchedness than we experienced before. All grievances are in a larger measure founded upon suspicion.

We take offense in the first place, perhaps, where none was intended, and instead of crushing down the ugly feelings that surge within our hearts we fan them into life and immediately they blaze out into a well-defined suspicion which probably would never have entered our thoughts had we been in a happier and more generous state of mind. We make the grievous mistake of allowing our suspicions to get the better of us and to work themselves so deeply into the heart that they embitter our thoughts and make us ready to believe almost anything, or rather to imagine almost anything.

We do not seem able to shake off our grievances either because we are too indifferent to their influences or because we really prefer to have them hanging as mill-stones around our necks. Pride and its usual accompaniment, stubbornness, are vital factors in nursing them into bitter expression.

There are times, possibly, when, realizing something of the folly of being controlled in so large a degree by unworthy motives, we feel that we would like to rid ourselves of their influences, but pride and a natural dislike to surrender our opinions right or wrong force us into holding on to our grievances indefinitely. There are few things that add to our natural discontent more than the cultivation of our resentments.

We are all more or less likely to become resentful under certain conditions, and the strength of that resentment, as a rule, depends largely upon the temper of the moment. After the first feeling of indignation passes it would seem entirely natural for us to welcome the opportunity of forgetting which is so freely offered. On the contrary, however, we often think it our duty to keep the fires burning and thereby make ourselves miserable.

It is easy enough to take offense if we are in the mind for doing so, and not all the explanation and apology that may be offered can quite make up according to our notion for the wrong done us or the wrong we may think was done us. We cannot, however, expect to place ourselves on a pedestal among our fellowmen, and after a while even the most amiable of men grow tired of making allowances and shun our society as far as possible. Nursing our grievances may appear for a time to be a satisfactory performance on our part, but the day is sure to come when such a practice stamps us unmistakably as persons with a grudge.

At the recent monthly meeting of the West Coast Lumber Manufacturers' Association, held in Portland, Ore., as reported in the American Lumberman, Chicago, of July 11th, Mr. G. X. Wendling, of San Francisco, Cal., one of the trustees of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, addressed the meeting and stated that he was an apostle of co-operation and that he and his associates in California had even carried on the idea to the extent that they had gone into an organization for the selling of their products in California. He stated that this had resulted in more staple prices for their products. He stated that in his opinion that such an organization as the West Coast Lumber Manufacturers' Association was a very important organization, and that one of the best features of it is its being a member of the National Manufacturers' Association. He stated that all substitutes for lumber were well organized and that in matters of grave import to the industry it was the voice of organization that was heard and not the individual voice; and to quote him directly: "I think it was Hancock who said: 'If we do not hang together, they will hang us separately.' You are representing the largest stand of timber in the United States; although you are discouraged now because of the deplorable market conditions of your products, I think you will later come into your own. Stay with the game. Members of this association, stay with your association; so far as this association is concerned, stay with the National. I KNOW OF NO PLACE WHERE HISTORY RECORDS THAT MONUMENTS HAVE BEEN BUILT TO DESERTERS."

THE BULLETIN is the official publication of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, and while the Order as an Order has for its object the promotion of the Health, Happiness and Long Life of its members, and is not in any way or manner connected with any of the different lumber associations, we believe that it is the duty of every lumberman to stand by the association that represents his branch of the trade and to support the association in every way possible. As it is only through these associations that great results beneficial to the industry can be obtained.

The Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo is the only organization in the lumber industry that seeks to unite all branches of the

PROSPECTIVE CONCATENATIONS

CONCATENATIONS.

THE Supreme Nine earnestly requests that all Vicegerent Snarks make a special effort to hold a Concatenation in their district before the close of the Hoo-Hoo year, September 9, 1914.

Trade conditions are bright and the outlook for good business is very encouraging and NOW is the time for us to get together.

Get in touch with your Vicegerent Snark and see that arrangements are made at once for holding a Concatenation. See that your district makes a good showing in the annual report this year.

There are several districts where no Concatenations have as yet been held this year, and YOU are urged to see that ONE is held before the annual.

BE A LIVE ONE.

BUFFALO, NEW YORK August 11, 1914.

Vicegerent Snark John A. Murphy, Western District New York, Buffalo, N. Y., has announced a Concatenation to be held in Buffalo, N. Y., on August 11, 1914.

Concatenation will be followed next day by the annual outing of the Buffalo Hoo-Hoo down the river. Brother Murphy advises that he has four teams working for the success of the Concatenation and outing representing the wholesalers, the retailers, the woodworkers and the transportation interests. The boat has been engaged and all are looking forward to a most delightful good time.

The Scrivenoter is in receipt of telegram from Brother Murphy, under date of July 23, 1914, reading as follows:

"Large committee meeting preparing for one grand Concatenation for August 11, 1914, to be followed by our annual outing next day. Everybody here alive and on the jump getting ready for a Hoo-Hoo club."

Get in touch with Brother Murphy and line up with one of the committees and do your share.

EDMONTON, ALBERTA August 12, 1914.

Vicegerent Snark A. J. Macdonald, Northern Alberta, Edmonton, Alta., will hold Concatenation at Edmonton, Alta., during the fair week, August 10 to 15, 1914. The Concatenation will be held Wednesday evening, August 12, 1914.

Brother Macdonald will be assisted by Vicegerent Snark John M. Nelson, Southern Alberta, Calgary, Alta., and this fall when Brother Nelson will hold his Concatenation at Calgary, Brother Macdonald will join hands with him and return the compliment.

This is the right spirit and THE BULLETIN is glad to see this co-operation between Vicegerent Snarks. Let's have more of it.

Brother Macdonald advises that he expects a large attendance of members and that the outlook for "kittens" is very bright.

All Hoo-Hoo of Alberta are requested to get in touch with Brother Macdonald, and to give him their hearty co-operation and support.

ROANOKE, VIRGINIA

Vicegerent Snark R. H. Angel, Western District Virginia, Roanoke, Va., will hold Concatenation at Roanoke sometime in August, definite date will be announced later through the lumber press.

Brother Angel and the Hoo-Hoo of his district are working hard to make this one of the best Concatenations ever held in that section and from what we have heard, feel sure that this will be a most successful Concatenation and a great gathering of the lumbermen of that section.

All Hoo-Hoo of Virginia and West Virginia are urged to get in touch with Brother Angel, and to give him their hearty co-operation and valuable assistance.

GREENVILLE, MISSISSIPPI

Vicegerent Snark A. J. Craig, Vicksburg District Mississippi, Vicksburg, Miss., is working on a Concatenation to be held at Greenville, Miss., before the annual, and advises us that the prospects are good for a large and successful meeting.

All Hoo-Hoo of this section are requested to give Brother Craig their hearty support and assistance.

OMAHA, NEBRASKA

Vicegerent Snark Harry B. Huston, Nebraska, Omaha, Neb., advises that plans for his fall Concatenation are being made, and that the prospects are bright and that he expects to make this the greatest Concatenation ever held in Nebraska.

All Nebraska Hoo-Hoo are requested to get in touch with Brother Huston and to give him their hearty co-operation and support.

TORONTO, ONTARIO

Vicegerent Snark R. H. Webb, Eastern District Ontario, Toronto, Ont., advises that he will hold a Concatenation at Toronto, some time in August or first of September, prior to the annual. Brother Webb writes that he is meeting with great success and that he expects this Concatenation to be the equal of any ever held in Canada. The Ontario Hoo-Hoo do not intend to permit the Western Canadian Hoo-Hoo to out do them in holding successful Concatenations.

The Ontario Hoo-Hoo appreciate the great value of Hoo-Hoo to the lumber trade, and we feel sure that Brother Webb will surprise us all with the success of his Concatenation.

All Ontario Hoo-Hoo are urged to get in touch with Brother Webb at once and give him the benefit of their loyal and hearty co-operation.

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Vicegerent Snark W. A. Hammond, Central Alabama, Birmingham, Ala., is hard at work planning a Concatenation to be held in Birmingham shortly. Brother Hammond advises that the prospects are very bright and that he expects to make this Concatenation one of the best ever held in the South. He states that he expects a large number of "kittens."

Get in touch with Brother Hammond and give him your support and co-operation.

CLARKSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA

Vicegerent Snark C. E. Parr, Clarksburg District, West Virginia, Clarksburg, W. Va., advises that he will hold Concatenation at Clarksburg first part of August, and that he already has several applications on hand and that he expects a successful Concatenation in every way. He is being assisted by Past Snark of the Universe E. Stringer Boggess, and all the loyal Hoo-Hoo of his district.

Get in touch with Brother Parr and give him your hearty co-operation and support.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

At this Concatenation they will also endeavor to get a large number of members to attend the 1914 annual at Winnipeg.

OUR DISTINGUISHED MEMBERS

GEORGE H. GRAYSON (No. 3430)

Vicegerent Snark Southwestern District Arkansas. Graysonia-Nashville Lumber Co., Graysonia, Ark.

THE BULLETIN takes pleasure in presenting on cover page, this issue, the photograph of Brother George H. Grayson, of Graysonia, Ark.

Brother Grayson was born at St. Louis, Mo., on September 6, 1874, and was initiated into Hoo-Hoo at Little Rock, Ark., on July 16, 1895.

Brother Grayson has been an enthusiastic Hoo-Hoo and a hard worker for the success of the Order ever since his initiation. He believes that the spirit of goodfellowship, which the Great Black Prince instills in his followers is of great benefit to the men engaged in the lumber and allied industries who are eligible for membership in Hoo-Hoo land.

He believes that the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo is of great value not alone to its members, but to the lumber and allied industries, and has shown his faith by actions that speak louder than words.

Brother Grayson was Vicegerent Snark for the entire State of Arkansas, for the years 1897-1898 and his record was one of the best in the history of the Order, and when we were appointing Vicegerent Snarks for the Hoo-Hoo year ending September 9, 1913, Brother Grayson was asked to accept appointment as Vicegerent Snark for the southwestern district of Arkansas and immediately wired in his acceptance, and held a mighty fine Concatenation at Graysonia, Ark., on April 19, 1913, initiating twenty-four "kittens." Report of this Concatenation was published in the May, 1913, issue of THE BULLETIN, and Past Snark of the Universe A. C. Ramsey stated it was one of the most successful Concatenations that he had ever had the pleasure of attending.

Brother Grayson accepted re-appointment for year ending September 9, 1914, and has held another most successful Concatenation this year.

Brother Grayson is general manager of the Graysonia-Nashville Lumber Co. of Graysonia, Ark., which is one of the largest and most successful lumber companies operating in this section of the country.

Brother Grayson is well known to the lumber trade, and his friends are too numerous to count. He is a gentleman of the highest type and a MAN that is worth knowing.

Brother Grayson attended the Twenty-second Annual at St. Louis last September, and took an active interest in the meeting. When the idea of Mr. John C. Spry, of Chicago, Ill., of the establishment of a permanent system of relief for aged and distressed lumbermen was unanimously adopted, and it was decided that the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo should undertake the organization of The American Lumber Trades' Benevolent Association to carry out this splendid idea, Brother Grayson announced that he would as a memorial to his late father, Mr. William Grayson, be pleased to donate a tract of one hundred acres of valuable improved land in Arkansas, together with buildings now located thereon and five thousand dollars in cash to start the fund for the purposes outlined.

Brother Grayson intends to attend the Twenty-third Annual in Winnipeg, September 8-12, 1914, and enjoy the hospitality of the Winnipeg and Western Canadian Hoo-Hoo.

There can be no question of the future of Hoo-Hoo, with such men as Brother Grayson as loyal and active workers for its success.

THE BULLETIN wishes Brother Grayson success and Health, Happiness and Long Life.

The American Lumber Trades' Benevolent Association

THE Scrivenoter has received many letters from members of the Order endorsing the American Lumber Trades' Benevolent Association, and stating that they would be pleased to do all in their power to make this a success in every-way, and we are sure that just as soon as the committee is organized and steps taken to put into active operation the splendid ideas advanced by Mr. John C. Spry, of Chicago, that all Hoo-Hoo and Lumbermen will support the association financially and otherwise.

It is to be regretted that we are unable to announce the committee in this issue of THE BULLETIN. Snark Kirby and the Scrivenoter have the matter in hand, but some of the gentlemen invited to serve on this committee are absent on their vacations and it was thought advisable not to announce any of the committee until the entire committee had been selected and they had accepted appointment.

This is the biggest proposition ever undertaken by the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, and we want the earnest, hearty support, co-operation and assistance of every man engaged in the lumber industry who has the interest of his fellow man at heart.

This is a big proposition, but not too big for the men in the lumber industry.

The lumber industry is one of the largest industries of the world, and it is up to the men engaged therein to do everything in their power to make a success of The American Lumber Trades Benevolent Association.

IT IS UP TO YOU. ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS.

THE BULLETIN asks the hearty co-operation of the lumber press in bringing this to the attention of all interested in the lumber industry.

NOW ALL FOR ONE AND ONE FOR ALL.

"Lumber and Its Uses"

THE BULLETIN is pleased to acknowledge receipt of copy of "LUMBER AND ITS USES," a 350-page book by Brother R. S. Kellogg, of Wausau, Wis.

This book contains valuable information for all users of lumber, and every one interested in the use of wood should secure a copy and profit by the practical information it contains. Brother Kellogg, who is a graduate of the United States Forest Service, in which he won distinction, has always been a close student of not only the forestry department of the lumber business, the structure of woods, the adaptability of various kinds of lumber to a variety of purposes and other essential features relative to the forest, but he has also gone extensively into the practical part, applying himself closely to the salient questions of manufacture and distribution, covering every avenue of consumption and every possible use for which lumber might be adaptable.

THE BULLETIN congratulates Brother Kellogg and thanks him for his kind remembrance.

The book is sold by the Radford Architectural Co., Chicago, Ill., at $1.00 per copy.

SEND FOR A COPY. IT WILL BE VALUABLE TO YOU.

THE STORY OF WINNIPEG.

By BROTHER J. HOOPER, Chairman of the Publicity Committee.

Like Rome of old, the half can never be told of Winnipeg. Because of the large number of visitors we expect in September, it would not do to give more than actual facts which can be verified on the spot.

The "Story of Winnipeg" is "Marvelous," if I am to accept the definition accorded my speech at St. Louis in favor of Winnipeg getting the 1914 annual, at least according to Brother Boling Arthur Johnson, who has put me down in his journal as the extoller of the "Wonders of the Northland."

Well, here goes, I am still at it—

Besides the above the three great transcontinental railways—Grand Trunk Pacific, Canadian Northern and Canadian Pacific all have great shops here employing close onto ten thousand men. The C. P. R. has the largest single yards in the world.

If you believe all this—you must see it. If you do not believe—COME AND SEE.

Let us take one more look over Winnipeg from the top of The Fort Garry Hotel, our official headquarters, or from the roof of one of the tall fourteen story buildings in the center business section. Looking down we see huge business blocks and palatial stores. Main street and Portage avenue with their magnificent breadth and length, thronged with thousands of Canadian Pacific Railway Depot, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Winnipeg's wholesale turnover now exceeds $160,000,000 a year, and is the home of 5,000 commercial travelers. It is also the greatest grain market on the American continent. Winnipeg's retail thoroughfares are the finest in Canada. Its telephones in use in 1900, 1,318; and in 1914, 38,147. The average tonnage for the past five years of freight received and sent out annually is over three and a half million tons.

Early in the game of becoming a big city, Winnipeg took up the practice of owning its public utilities. Winnipeg's big electrical works are on the Winnipeg River, northeast of the city. The total power available without storage is 60,000 horse-power, which can be increased to 100,000 horse-power. The cost of the works, including generating stations, all completed and equipped is $6,000,000. In addition to its greatest industry, Winnipeg owns all public parks, its asphalt plant, city quarries, water works, street lighting system, a 300-pound high pressure fire protection system. At the close of 1913 Winnipeg had 246 miles of sewers, 577 miles of sidewalks, 261 miles of paved streets, and 250 miles of graded thoroughfares. Has seventeen fire hall stations, employing 212 firemen, and 275 enrolled police.

Winnipeg has now 396 factories, employing over 22,000 hands. Value factory output, 1901, $8,606,248; 1913, $47,400,008. Capital invested in manufacturing, $53,000,000.

busy people, fine automobiles, carriages, electric vans, street cars, heavy teams and all the varied traffic of great thoroughfares lie at our feet.

Winding in and out, almost through the heart of the city, we see the Red and Assiniboine Rivers flowing past, while the smoke of rushing engines of three great transcontinental railway systems rises to lose itself in the clear air.

Far out from the busy center of the city the streets reach their long arms to embrace the prairie country in wide and comprehensive clasp.

Close your eyes for a moment and fancy that you see all of this great city of a quarter million people that Winnipeg now is, and then look back for one brief moment and, blotting from your sight the great beginnings already made of that great metropolis of the near future, see the land as it was less than forty years ago, a fort and trading post, with a few horsemen riding to and from the post now and again. Red Indians slowly wending their way across the plain, and far away in the distance a herd of buffalo grazing.

Open your eyes and look at what has happened during these past three score years and see as all see who view this scene with the eye of understanding, the wonderful city of Winnipeg—the gateway of Western Canada—"the Last Best West."

DOING THINGS AT WINNIPEG.

The following is from the Winnipeg Telegram, July 21. GREAT CONVENTION HERE IN FALL. MAKES COMMITTEE GASP.

Problem of City Entertaining 2,000 Taxpayers of Officials to the Utmost.

There is a convention coming to Winnipeg September 8-11, that will be so large that the resources of the civic reception committee will be taxed to the utmost, yet the city will take the expected 2,000 for an automobile trip around this city and render them a luncheon in one of the restaurants.

The lumbermen's Hoo-Hoo convention will be held here on these dates and representatives of the local end of the organization made the legislation and reception committee yesterday afternoon what action the city would take. In extending a welcome and reception, special trains from all parts of the continent are coming, and for one afternoon the visitors will be the guests of the city. The whole seventh floor of the Fort Garry Hotel will be utilized by the convention. Alderman Wallace, chairman of the committee, Alderman Davison and City Clerk Brown will make the necessary arrangements. At Assiniboine Park pavilion can only accommodate 400 people at luncheon at once, this resort had to be abandoned for the event, but the big auditorium of the Industrial Bureau will be utilized. The Governor of the Province and the Mayor of the city will welcome the guests in person.

SHERLOCK HOLMES VISITS WINNIPEG

Mr. Arthur Conan Doyle, the author of Sherlock Holmes, was recently in Winnipeg when a trip through Northwestern Canada. He left the following account of his visit to the city of the "Last Best West."

THE ATMANAGA TRAIL

My life is gliding down a river. It glides so fast to the top. When it shows the last dark corner to the right of the bay. And with its action is running through these parts that are to be. The night vision of Canada will come up to be. I shall see the sun of glory when the world is not. I shall see the night vision with its last in the sun. And shall know that I am going down the winding road to the end. And the path and the path leads to the wilderness trail.

I have passed the winter of the last winter. When the snow and the winter and the cold wind of snow. The winter is over and the sun and the sun. When the sun is over and the sun and the sun. I have seen the sun of glory when the world is not. I have seen the night vision with its last in the sun. And shall know that I am going down the winding road to the end. And the path and the path leads to the wilderness trail.

THE LUMBERMEN'S WEEK AT WINNIPEG

The program planned up for the Big Hoo-Hoo in Winnipeg, September 1-12 is one of the best ever attempted. No less than 40 lumbermen from the north and west will attend the ladies including their families, etc. distributed gratis through the cooperation of the Winnipeg Hoo-Hoo and Lumbermen.

It is without doubt the most elaborate program ever attempted at a Hoo-Hoo Annual.

Many visitors will take a trip on their own account to Minaki, the famous bow summer resort on the G. T. P. line, near Winnipeg. The Minaki Inn is the finest summer hotel in all Canada. There will be two trains available. Particulars of which can be had of the G. T. P. agent at the Fort Garry Hotel.

The trip to the Ramy River district and Fort Frances will be taken by name. At this point is situated the largest interior pine mill in Canada and the largest pulp mill. Excellent shooting and fishing in season. The agents of the Canadian Northern Ry. will give full particulars. Hotel arrangements can be made at the Fort Frances Hotel, Fort Frances, Ont., who give the best attention to visitors at very low rates.

On SATURDAY, September 12, there will be trips to summer resorts near Winnipeg, at option of visitors.

All registration and sessions will be held at The Fort Garry Hotel.

For hotel accommodation, address J. E. McFee, hotel committee, care Lumbermen's Association, 703 McIntyre Block, Winnipeg.

For other information address J. Hoover, chairman publicity committee, care Retail Lumberman and Western Builder, 300 Donald Block, Winnipeg.

ARTHUR B. CALDER
Chairman Transportation Committee, Twenty-third Annual, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

R. F. BINGHAM
Chairman Finance Committee, Twenty-third Annual, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Brother Bingham has made a great success of his efforts for the annual. He is manager of the Coast Lumber Yard, Ltd., Winnipeg.

For particulars of the special Train from St. Louis and Chicago, address W. M. Stephenson, 1219 Wright Building, St. Louis, Mo.

For particulars of all entertainment or vaudeville, address F. H. Mitchell, chairman entertainment committee, care Tomlinson & Mitchell, Union Bank, Winnipeg.

Those who wish to join Hoo-Hoo at the annual should address Geo. H. Wall, chairman Concentration committee, care Dutton-Wall Lumber Co., Travelers Building, Winnipeg.

The Fort Garry Hotel is the official headquarters of Hoo-Hoo and Lumbermen. Their special low rates and palatial hotel make this the best hotel in Canada for such a convention. All the Supreme Nine and officers have already secured quarters at this hotel, and every member is urged to send in his reservation early, in order not to be disappointed.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

In a letter from a Hoo-Hoo in Charleston, S. C., he writes as follows to the publicity committee at Winnipeg:

"As I am planning to bring my wife and daughter along, will you be so kind as to ask your wife about what clothes they would require at that season of the year in your city, for here in this Southland we can form no definite idea as to how cold it is there and just what a ladies' requirements would be."

In answer it is well to state that the September days in Winnipeg are very fair and beautiful early fall weather. In the day, light clothes or linens are generally used, including straw hats, etc. For the evenings a heavier dress, light-weight underclothes, and an extra under suit of flannels for fall wear. Cold weather does not reach Winnipeg until late October or November. The weather in September is generally delightful, with cooler evenings—the best month in the year in Winnipeg. A light fall overcoat for evening wear will be found useful, although, no overcoats are worn by Canadians in that month.

WINNIPEG'S POPULATION.

Mr. Chas. F. Roland, Winnipeg's Industrial Commissioner, states that the population of Winnipeg has been greatly underestimated by many papers. The last official census two years ago showed 201,236 souls inside the city limits. The Assessment Commission and Directory authorities give a population in July, 1911, of 223,000, entirely inside the limits, which are considerably confined. The actual population in Greater Winnipeg inside a circle radiating only six miles from the City Hall, is a QUARTER OF A MILLION PEOPLE. Come and see.

SPECIAL FROM WINNIPEG.

We have just received word from the Winnipeg publicity committee that the Duke of Cornwall (brother of the late King Edward), and who is now Governor-General of Canada, will be in Winnipeg September 1-4, 1911, and will, for the first time in his career, stop at a hotel with his entire royal staff. That the hotel selected is "The Fort Garry" is evidence enough that this new palatial building is really one of the few highest type hotels on the continent. The Hoo-Hoo were very fortunate in getting this palace hotel for their headquarters, and the rates offered are half what first class, select hotels generally ask.

The Duke of Cornwall is to be accompanied by the Duchess of Cornwall, and Her Royal Highness, the Princess Patricia. One complete floor has been reserved for the royal party.

The marble hall, the banquet hall, the wonderful convention hall with stage and dressing rooms for performance, the merranine gallery, and its outlook over forty miles of city and prairie view, are all entrancing. The Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba (who is a lumberman), also the Mayor and Civic officials will welcome the lumber hosts.

We had expected to give a list of all those ladies and gentlemen who were contemplating going to Winnipeg, but as this runs up in the hundreds and still growing rapidly, it is absolutely impossible to do so.

Look at the grand entertainment to be provided, and beside this all the best vaudeville and artists of New York and Chicago are being drawn on to make a wonderful occasion.

From present indications, the Honor Roll of Vicegerents when called will be the most complete that our annual has ever seen. No Vicegerent Snark should miss this annual. If he does it will cost him more than his job—he will lose ten years of Health, Happiness and Life.

O! YOU SEPTEMBER MORN!

Everything seems to be progressing favorably for the Big Hoo-Hoo meet in September, and it is likely that all the committees will have something decided and definite before this month has passed.

The Publicity Press and Badge Committee are still hard at work, and at their regular monthly meeting, held on the third Wednesday of each month, sub-committees were struck to take charge of the work allotted, and the following was the result:

Entire charge of distribution of badges will be placed with Brothers Roberts and Sinclair—one badge only to each and every person registering, including ladies.

The pennants will be controlled by Brothers Young and Lythgoe. Two pennants to each auto provided, and one to each member.

The uniform hats will be controlled by Brothers McNicol and Hoover. One hat to each lady or gentleman registering.

The registry books and index cards will be managed by Brothers Carter and Knight. In order to secure hats, pennants or badges, everyone, lady or gent, must first receive a guests' registry card.

H. P. W. COOKE,
Vice-governor Southern District Saskatchewan,
Arme Lumber Co., Moose Jaw, Sask.

Brother Cooke is a live wire and a hard worker for Hoo-Hoo. He differs from Dr. Cooke, in that if he started for the North Pole, there would be no doubt of its discovery.

Brother Cooke is serving his third term as Vice-governor of the Southern district of Saskatchewan and on March 28, 1914, held a cracker-jack Concatenation at Regina, Sask., initiating sixty "kittens."

Brother Cooke will be at the annual and is doing his part to make it the best annual ever held.

The other souvenirs, programs, etc., will be handled by Brothers Sid. Smith, Millard and Fletcher.

The chairman, Brother Hooper, is ex-officio, a member of each sub-committee, with power to appoint assistants if required. Five lady stenographers have volunteered, and will assist these sub-committees.

Two or three indexed registry books will be used, and no delay in issuing guest cards or certificates of registration to all city and outside visitors. There will be no charges, no delay, and no red tape for hats, pennants or badges, etc., but everything will be run on correct business principles to ensure satisfaction to all.

At the last meeting of the Publicity Committee the reports show over 400 letters sent out, 1,000 booklets mailed, 174 write-ups and articles with 48 cuts prepared and sent out. The Industrial Bureau and the railroad companies are also assisting in sending out literature.

One thousand and eight hundred extra copies of the "Retail Lumberman and Western Builder" have also been sent out to selected addresses in the United States and Canada, all without a single cent of cost to anyone except the publishers.

There is only seven weeks to elapse before the convention will be here, and the work of all committees should be completed in four weeks. We expect, therefore, that our next issue will contain something definite as to the work of all the other committees, who, we understand, are about to hold their meetings and complete all necessary details to make this convention the best in the annals of Hoo-Hoo.—Retail Lumberman, Winnipeg.

INDICATIONS SPELL SUCCESS.

The large number of applications and letters received in this office and handed over to the various committees, we feel sure that the 1914 annual is going to be a record-breaker.

The usual half-fare will be given on all lines of railway. By paying full fare at the point of departure and securing a regular convention certificate there will be no charge for the return. The Fort Garry Hotel will not charge additional for the wives of members attending if you send in your name now to the Chairman Hotels Committee, 703 McIntyre Block, Winnipeg. The rooms are being rapidly reserved, so don't delay. Among the first ones to reserve a room for himself and wife was Bolling Arthur Johnson, the originator and founder of Hoo-Hoo, editor of the "Lumber World Review," Chicago.

The Chairman of the Concatenation Committee, Geo. H. Wall, 406 Travelers' Building, Winnipeg, reports that a large number of candidates are already registered. He says he has no doubt whatever but that there will be one hundred candidates for the annual in September. His committee are to hold a

Let everybody get busy and boost!—Retail Lumberman, Winnipeg.

PACIFIC COAST HOO-HOO GOING TO WINNIPEG.

Brother A. B. Calder, Winnipeg, Chairman of the Transportation Committee for the Twenty-third Annual has sent in the following:

Regarding rates from the Pacific Coast, I suggest that the Hoo-Hoo use the summer round-trip rate, which is in effect from all Pacific Coast cities, July until September 15th. This I believe is, from Portland to Winnipeg, $60.00.

The visiting Hoo-Hoo from Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and intermediate points could assemble at Seattle, and take the Canadian Pacific daylight ship via Victoria to Vancouver, and make connection the same evening at Vancouver for Winnipeg. This would also give them an hour or so at Victoria, they can make arrangement for a sleeping car or two, or as many as are necessary from Vancouver to Winnipeg.

As a great number of Hoo-Hoo may desire to return via St. Paul and visit their customers in the Twin Cities, I suggest that in this event they purchase a round-trip ticket to St. Paul, to which the same rate applies as to Winnipeg.

E. T. LYTHGOE
Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Brother Lythgoe is a live wire member of the Publicity Committee for the Twenty-third Annual. He is with the Rat Portage Lumber Co., Winnipeg.

This ticket will take them through Winnipeg to the Twin Cities, returning them by any direct line to the Pacific Coast at the rate named, $60.00.

Should any of the Brothers desire to see both the scenic routes of the Canadian Pacific, they could arrange their transportation in the manner I have suggested, via Winnipeg to St. Paul, and returning via the Soo Line to Portal, N. D., thence to the C. P. Crow's Nest Line via Nelson, and up the Columbia River to Revelstoke, thence west to their homes.

As indicated herein, it is possible, however, for them to have their tickets read back by the Northern Pacific or Great Northern, or the new line of C. M. & St. P., any of these without additional cost.

GEORGE KNIGHT
Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Brother Knight is a member of the Publicity Committee, and a big booster for the Twenty-third Annual. He is with the Rat Portage Lumber Co., Winnipeg.

NOTICE TO ALL CANADIAN HOO-HOO.

All Canadian lumbermen, Hoo-Hoo, and their friends, as well as ladies, will be able to get half fare for their trip to Winnipeg, September 4 to 12, to attend the Lumbermen's Outing Week and Hoo-Hoo Annual.

It is necessary to demand and secure Standard Certificate of any Canadian local ticket agent, who is authorized to issue such for each ticket to Winnipeg, which pays full fare one way. These certificates will be validated at Winnipeg by the Convention Secretary free of all charge, giving the return trip FREE, thereby making a round trip for half-fare.

These standard certificates are good to go to Winnipeg three days before the convention, and can be used for return three days after the close of convention. They will, therefore, be good for about ten or twelve days.

Be sure and pay full fare one way only, and secure Standard Certificate.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL.

All Hoo-Hoo and Lumbermen or their wives, who live in the United States and contemplate going to the Big Doings in Winnipeg, Manitoba, in September next, can reduce the cost of travel by buying a ticket to nearest point in Canadian territory, and then securing the half-fare rate on Canadian railroad lines as noted below. Thus those who live in Seattle, Portland, Tacoma, or other Pacific Coast cities, can secure half-fare to Winnipeg from either Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria or Nelson, B. C.

Winnipeg, July 27, 1914.

W. M. Stephenson, Supreme Scrivener,
1210 Wright Building,
St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sir and Brother:—

Your kind letter received and contents noted. Our Committee thank you for your kind appreciation of their work. The writer wishes you to give all the credit for the magnificent work done to the members of the committee, as I am simply their agent. I have worked on hundreds of committees, but never had a better one than the one now working with me. A finer set of gentlemanly lumbermen it would be hard to find anywhere. To them alone belongs all the credit as far as our committee work is concerned.

I want this appreciation of their work to go in THE BULLETIN, when you are placing the reports from the other committees.

This committee has prepared and sent out 192 articles and write-ups, including 78 cuts and photos. Mailed out 1,000 booklets and 2,325 copies of the Retail Lumberman and Western Builder, sent out 482 letters to enquiries and personal, secured the official badges, hats and pennants, souvenir programs, etc., all without asking anyone to contribute one cent. We did this to relieve the Finance Committee of what would have otherwise cost them over two thousand dollars in cold cash, thereby leaving the Finance Committee unhampered by the large number of incidental expenses, such as postage, customs duty, immense cost of electros, cuts, photos, printing of 100,000 stickers, stationery, etc.

Our committee accept your approval of the good work done, and have made elaborate arrangements to continue the work in hand. We have written the chairman of all other committees, asking their kind co-operation in getting full reports, photos, etc., and no doubt these will be turned in when convenient.

The work of our committee is about completed, and we intend to celebrate same by a luncheon shortly. The other committees' work is just beginning, and I am sure that the Concatenation Committee, Finance Committee, Reception, Ladies', and other committees will have similar good reports to make, as they are all bustling. With kindest regards from all our committee.

Yours fraternally,

J. HOOPER,
Chairman.

"CATS."

By MRS. HUGH OLARKE.

When the stars begin to twinkle,
And the moon begins to rise;
Then the cats begin to travel,
And they open wide their eyes.

When the rats begin to run,
And the mice begin to chase;
Then the cats begin to gather
Around the old barn place.

When the mice begin to squeak,
And the cats begin to chew,
Then the rats begin to say,
We are in the land of Hoo-Hoo.

When the cats begin to mew,
All the rats begin to beg;
Then the kittens begin to say,
Meet us in Winnipeg.

THE SEESAW.

Children on the seesaw, having lots of fun,
Sometimes in the shadow, sometimes in the sun,
Fill the air with laughter, catching is their glee;—
And ah, their childish voices bring a message sweet to me!

Life's a game of seesaw. We've our ups and downs.
Now the world is smiling—now we see its frowns!
Fate is at the balance; striving little men
Who think they're going up for keeps will soon come down again.

Life's a game of seesaw; and the daily grind
Is but a repetition of things Time's left behind.
If you would be happy, if joy you would receive,
Just take a tip from children's play, and laugh!—or make believe!

Life's a game of seesaw. Riches, love and fame
Are the prizes offered. Comrade, play the game!
In a life well-rounded there's what as well as chaff;—
The greatest wisdom in the world is hidden in a laugh!

MY SQUARE DEAL MOTTO:
ONE MAN WITH ROD AND REEL
AND ONE HOOK TO ONE FISH

AROUND MCGARVIN'S FISHING CAMP.

By ROBERT E. MASTERS (No. 71)

At the time I write of, back in the nineties, Long Beach was a small place; it would have required some fine figuring to have mustered up one thousand inhabitants. There were two steam trains a day to Los Angeles, twenty-two miles away, and no trains after nightfall at all. There was scarcely a house between the town and Los Alamitos Bay, and absolutely nothing near or around the bay but McGarvin's fishing camp. The surrounding tide lands and sand dunes could have been bought for a song, and for not much of a song, either. I tell this because nothing of which I write could be found there today but the bay, and that has been changed and all around it diked and filled in and canaled into a regular Venice, and residences costing from ten thousand to seventy-five thousand dollars are built all around there; and on the bluffs between the bay and Long Beach, which has grown into a thriving city, claiming forty thousand inhabitants, with numerous steam trains and five-minute local and through electric service to Los Angeles—in fact, it is so built up it would puzzle a stranger to tell when he got out of Long Beach into Los Angeles, and Los Alamitos is an attractive resort for both cities.

At the time I write of the tide lands back of the camp were in possession of fiddler crabs; the land as far back as the tides reached was honeycombed, perforated and inhabited by millions of these crabs, which were preyed on by the various kind of sharks, rays, halibut and other fish that frequented the bay, or came in and went out with ocean's tide for that purpose.

McGarvin's was a picturesque old place, in a still more picturesque setting. It had all the attractions of a fishing camp; the seines and nets and boats new and old were there, and the fishermen young and old were there to match them.

One of the grizzly old veterans, Capt. Remington, who laid around the camp a great deal, a victim of rheumatism, had had a vast experience and had a happy knack of relating them. He claimed to be the first man to land a tuna on Catalina Island; said he caught them on a hand line when near the island during the course of his market fishing, and he went in there to land some of them.

Ocean Sun Fish.

There was a young man, a bookkeeper in a Los Angeles business house, who was in poor health. When it came time for him to take his vacation he concluded to take it out in work around McGarvin's camp—which I had told him about. He began to get better right from the start, and became so fascinated with the life he stayed there and never returned to his bookkeeping job. He was a daring fellow, and so quick and active in the water the men around the camp christened him

"Barricuda Tom," and I had many stirring adventures with him during the five years following. He is still following a sea-faring life, gradually advancing from fishing smacks to lumber schooner, then through a line of tramp freight steamships to passenger vessels. His intelligence and devotion to his adopted calling carried him forward from the hold to the bridge, until today he is one of the chief officers on a regular liner—and his old companion through many an exciting struggle with the denizens of the deep and hard fights with the sea itself, says, "Here's success to you, Tom; long may you wave but never waver."

All the paraphernalia used in that day by the professional market fisherman carrying on a wholesale business lay around McGarvin's place—huge black kettles hung on tripods for trying out the liners of sharks and large sting rays; fishing smacks, dories, surf boats and sea skills; seines and nets of all kinds lay on the sands all about there, some of it new, some in the course of repair or to be mended, a lot torn up beyond repair by the monsters of the sea and still more old and worn out of service.

My den in which I write these stories is furnished in a marine effect, and I have many sea trophies obtained or given me by the fishermen in those days, and the room is draped with old nets and corks given to me by the McGarvins, so you see it all tends to give an inspiration to tell of these things. The history of any one of the old played-out, abandoned boats lying around the shore would read like a Jack London's sea romance, or Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," with the lines he made so familiar running through it:

"Fifteen men on a dead man's chest—
Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum!
Drink and the devil had done for the rest—
Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum!"

For many a daring smuggler and ye bold and merry freebooter hung around that camp at times in the guise of a simple fisherman, but that will be told in another story.

There was an old schooner just off the bay shore that had been burned to the water's edge, and every time I looked at that old hull it carried me back to boyhood days in the little red school house on the hill, where the boys used to declaim before their proud parents about that fool boy and the burning deck, and I would imagine I could see

That famous deck was all aflame,
And the boy stood there alone.
I'll bet the hole in the doughnut,
He wished that he was home.
That burning deck gave him a rep,
If he was but a boy.
At school we always spoke of him,
And his name was Pat Malloy;
He just stood there when all had fled,
But what appealed to me
Was his finding old McGinty
At the bottom of the sea.

There was good sport in the bay, but the place was so remote there were but few sportsmen tried it, and there was no place to stay or accommodations to be had except what one might get at the camp; but the two girls did not encourage that, as with their housework and what help they gave to the nets and fishing, their time was pretty well taken up. Counting the rays and sharks in with the halibut, whiting and other fish, I have caught, large and small, forty varieties in the bay, and there was no better place to fish in the ocean than to start out from McGarvin's and cruise the coast from one to ten miles off shore from La Bolsa Chico up by Point Fermin light to Portugese Bend, with the exception of the salmon, which does not come south of Monterey Bay. One does not need to go anywhere else to catch about every variety of fish to be found on our side of the Pacific. In this territory I have seen fish in the most unbelievable schools, and of every kind from the club mackerel to the sulphur bottom whales, the largest animal living or extinct that has ever inhabited the sea or land.

At times the tuna, the king of the mackerel family, called by some the leaping tuna, can be found as thick as bees.

I had been up to a Japanese Abalone camp at Whites Point, and returning to Alamitos Bay we anchored just inside the mouth of the bay to try for a surf fish, as I had often caught them there by casting out into the rough water. I soon got a strike that I knew did not come from any surf fish. We got up anchor, as the visitor was handling my light tackle to suit his own convenience, but after some argument pro and con I brought the game to gaff and it proved to be a large specimen of the angel fish or monk fish. I had caught some of the beautiful colored angel fish off the coast of Florida and in tropical waters, and most of the variety are worthy of the name, but neither name seemed to belong to this fellow; he was repulsive in shape and color and seemed to be a derizen of the other place. He had a protruding under jaw and had a fashion of staring in a way that said, "Well, what the hell yer goin' to do about it?" and I didn't know what. He was of a dark mottled brown color and had a very rough skin studded with tubercles; he was about five feet long and gave a good account of himself on a rod and reel.

One Way to Catch Mackerel.

Sometimes when the boys were outside working in the surf they would sight a small school of tinker or club mackerel. They resemble the common green back or tub mackerel, are a fine table fish and find a ready market. They would take the seine and two surf boats and make a swing around the mackerel and begin to draw in on the lead line, taking in net, fish and all to the capacity of the boats and then hike for camp with the boats sitting as low down in the water as they dared to let them. If they shipped one sea it would be good-bye to the fish and net and maybe men, for no matter how good a swimmer a man may be there is no hope for him if he gets tangled in a net at sea.

The man who slips off up the creek early Sunday morning to fish for crappie, blue gills, pumpkin seed, or golden sun fish, would think a sun fish over eight feet long and weighing close to a ton would be some fish, but that is the record for the ocean sun fish on the Pacific Coast. They are in both oceans, and it is no uncommon sight to see them swimming along at the surface with their great fin sticking up out of the water or laying flat on their side on the surface sunning themselves, and they will sleep that way for days. Their mouth is very small; their tail is all muscle and seems to be jammed on to their body—there is no taper like any right-minded or right-shaped fish has.

Their skin is like coarse sandpaper; they are not fit to eat but considerable oil is obtained from their livers. I have caught a number of them by sailing right up aside and harpooning them. One day I was cruising around with some of the boys from McGarvin's and we came across eight of these monsters lying in a row asleep and sunning themselves. The smallest one was much larger than a dining-room table, and of course we selected the largest—it must have weighed fifteen hundred pounds. We drew up close to it and socked the harpoon in it; it woke up and got a move on quick, and so did we have to, and I thought we would all be taken to Davy Jones' locker before we conquered that fish. The ocean sun fish is about the largest of all fishes.

Trees Linked With United States History

BROTHER FRANK W. TROWER, Past Snark of the Universe and High Priest of the Osirian Cloister, San Francisco, Cal., sends THE BULLETIN the following clipping from the Oakland, Cal. Tribune:

TREES ARE LINKED WITH U. S. HISTORY.

Charter Oak Is Only One of Famous Marks of Past. WASHINGTON, June 17.—Few persons realize that American history is linked as much with old trees as with historic buildings and spots. Few visitors to the national capital ever look at the famous trees—and there are thousands of visitors here every week who believe after their tour that they have seen everything of importance.

Not only in a thousand Washington visitors—or residents—know that the beautiful "Summer Elm" in front of the capitol was planted by Abraham Lincoln. Few know that nearly every other president of the United States has planted trees in Washington which still stand. Nearly every famous American statesman can be linked with one or more of the sturdy old trees here. A big cypress near the capitol was brought here by Miss Jefferson Davis and just across the street from it is a tree Charles Sumner planted.

Tree Man Talks.

The "tree man" of Washington is Bristol Adams, forest examiner of the Bureau of Forests, United States Department of Agriculture. Speaking of trees closely associated with American history, Adams said:

"There is the famous elm under which William Penn made his treaty with the Indians. That tree was so esteemed that the English soldiers placed a special guard around it during the Revolution, and after it was blown down by a gale in 1810, its trunk was sent to the old Penn family seat, near Windsor, England. There it still is preserved."

On Georgia avenue in Washington, according to Adams, on the grounds of the Walter Reed hospital is the trunk of an American poplar which was occupied by both Confederate and Federal lookouts and sharpshooters during the Civil War, when the Southern forces made their nearest approach to Washington. The tree was the lookout point from Fort Stevens.

Scattered throughout the United States, especially in New England are many other famous trees. If one elm on Boston Common could tell its history, tragic tales of suffering would be unfolded, for on it were hanged two witches and Mary Dyer, the Quakeress.

At Hartford, Conn., is the famous Charter Oak, where the charter of Connecticut was hidden when King James sent Governor Andros across the ocean to usurp the powers in the original land grant.

Appomattox Oak.

Adams said he believed the old Appomattox Oak is still standing. Under it Generals Grant and Lee met on the occasion which marked the close of the Civil War hostilities.

At one battle of the Revolution, the American forces were saved from a terrible defeat by the tough, spongy wood of the palmetto tree. That was at Charleston, S. C., during the battle of Fort Moultrie. Then the British volleys fell harmless against the trees which sheltered the Continental army. The first Protestant church services in the United States were held under trees at Jamestown, Va. The most recent of historic trees in Washington are the Japanese cherries, the gift of the late Emperor of China. They were set out along the Potomac drive.

CHIPS & SPLINTERS PICKED UP HERE, THERE & YONDER

Are you a gloom maker or a smile producer? When cheek meets cheek then comes the tug for more. A thorn in the bush is worth two in the hand. The man who wrote, "I'm saddest when I sing," was foolish for singing. A preacher crosses the eyes of his congregation when he says, AMEN. The power behind the THROWN—a banana skin. Always bear both sides of a story and then—pass it up. Heaven is reached by a winding staircase, the other place by a shoot-the-chute. Many a whole-soxled man wears shoes that leak. Mrs. Congress Gaiter-nee-The Old Woman who lived in a shoe. Why does a bride "weep up the church aisle?" when it's the sexton's work. First day bathing at the beach is bliss, second day blisters. Many a powerful piano mover is unable to carry a tune. It's alright to believe only half you hear, but which half? An unmarried man never realizes how many faults he has. Even the washerwoman feels she has to draw the line somewhere. Carpets are bought by the yard, and worn out by the foot. Sometimes a handsome man can earn a living in spite of it. The new tariff law does not seem to affect the train robbing industry. There was a girl in Cincinnati, Who kept growing fat and fatter. 'Til the doctor said she better, Stop her beer.

DON'T FORGET. Poets are born and no law can prevent it.

SAFELY MATED.

CONCATENATIONS

VICEGERENT SNARK W. A. NICHOLS, Southern District Texas, Beaumont, Texas, held his second Concatenation of the Hoo-Hoo Year at Beaumont, Texas, on July 4, 1914, initiating eleven "kittens."

PARADE A BIG FEATURE.

A big feature of the celebration was the patriotic, fraternal and civil parade in the afternoon. Forming at Pearl and Calder shortly after five o'clock, the procession, almost a mile in length, moved down Pearl street to Austin, then west to Orleans and south to the picnic grounds, where it disbanded.

With the exception of the traveling men and Beaumont and Nacogdoches Elks baseball players every delegation and individual previously announced appeared in the parade. The procession was headed by a squad of mounted police, captained by Chief of Police N. N. Smith. In the other divisions were the mayor and city officials in automobiles, the commissioners in charge of the celebration and officials of the Chamber of Commerce in automobiles, Woodmen band, Curley Pine camp, Woodmen of the World, and representatives of fifteen other Woodmen camps, members of the Young Women's Christian Association, three troops of Boy Scouts, members of the Home Garden Association, school children, Inceville Band, members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, members of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, headed by the Supreme Nine in an automobile wearing the typical Hoo-Hoo hat and the automobile was decorated with the familiar picture of the big black cat rampant; part of the Beaumont Fire Department, headed by Fire Chief Ed. K. Eastham and a number of decorated automobiles and bicycles. A wagon loaded with fresh vegetables in the Home Gardeners' division and the float carrying the Supreme Nine of the Hoo-Hoo Order were two unusually interesting features of the parade. The procession moved down Pearl street between two walls of humanity, and the great crowds showed their appreciation with frequent applause.

HOO-HOO HOLD SEMINAR AND INITIATE KITTENS.

Eleven Purbleds Were Led Into the Light of the Hoo-Hoo Universe and Bevel on the Roof.

Eleven purbled kittens were initiated into Hoo-Hoo at a well-attended Concatenation held in the Elks' Hall last night. Hoo-Hoo were here yesterday to the number of about 200. Scrivenator R. J. Morton opened headquarters in the Crosby House early in the day and registered the visitors and received the applications. The secret work began last night at 9:00 o'clock and continued until a late hour.

Following the custom of Hoo-Hoo there was session "on the roof" after the initiation. This took place in Elks' Hall, where refreshments were served. During the repeat several patriotic speeches were made touching upon the excellent manner in which Beaumont celebrated the Fourth of July.

Early yesterday morning headquarters were established in the lobby of the Crosby House, where Mr. Morton registered the candidates and visited Hoo-Hoo, of the latter it was stated more than 200 reported to the Scrivenator's desk. Black felt hats with the insignia of the Order, a black cat on them, were distributed with a cloth badge to members.

HOO-HOO CONCATENATION.

Shortly before the fireworks display was over about 200 members of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo assembled at the Elks' club rooms and promptly at 9:00 o'clock began the big Concatenation.

New kittens were taken into the mystic Order, and after they had been made full-fledged black cats, the candidates joined in the march. A Dutch lunch was served and, in the language of the Order, "the cats climbed to the house tops and made night hideous."

THE BULLETIN congratulates Brother Nichols and the good Hoo-Hoo of his district upon the success of this Concatenation.

Hoo-Hoo is very much alive in Beaumont, and the lumbermen there appreciate the great value derived from frequent meetings.

The officiating Nine was on the job, and it would be hard to find a better Nine to occupy the different stations.

Brother R. J. Morton again acted as Scrivenator, and certainly understands the duties of this office and his reports are always a model. If all reports of Concatenations were as complete as his the work of this office would be greatly assisted.

W. A. PRIDDLE (129) Jabberwock.

This Concatenation was held in connection with the big Fourth of July celebration held in Beaumont. The following account of the celebration, parade and Concatenation is from the Beaumont newspapers:

Ripped Out and Resawed by H. E. Noseita II

THESE are fifty-five species of oak in the United States about evenly divided between the East and the West.

The first bank in America was organized by Robert Morris, in Philadelphia, in 1780.

The United States forest service collected 40,000 pounds of tree seed last year for use in restoration work, the total area reforested was about 30,000 acres.

Colorado has 6,000,000 acres of land under irrigation.

Last year the fire loss on Canadian timber reserves was the smallest ever known.

About fifty workmen are permanently employed in keeping St. Paul's Cathedral, London, England, in repair.

The annual capacity of the forest nurseries of the government is about twenty-five million young trees.

Sugar consumption in the United States is now a pound and a half a week for each person.

Manufacturers have found the red alder from the Pacific Coast makes a smooth, springy clothes pin.

Bricks made of furnace slag increase in strength with age.

The agricultural experiment station at Pullman, Washington, is establishing an arboretum in which it is proposed to grow a group of each of the important timber trees of the temperate zone.

This year in Napa County, California, five million silk worms will be raised on one mulberry tree plantation.

The leaf of the Ceylon talipot palm, which grows to one hundred feet in height is so wide it will cover twenty men.

Norway has 144 planting societies. The first was founded in 1900, since then twenty-six million trees have been planted.

Galveston, Texas, is the second largest exporting city in the United States; in one year her exports alone exceed the combined imports and exports of San Francisco for two years by over $25,000,000.

Forestry is practiced on 70 per cent of the forests publicly owned and on less than one per cent of the forests privately owned.

The present rate of cutting is three times the annual growth of forests in the United States.

There are 56,527,000 cattle on farms in the United States.

GOING SOME.

A cross town car had reached the top of the incline when the conductor stopped in front of a very old man and asked: "Did I get your fare?"

"Yes, sir," was the reply. "I'm the little boy that got on at Main street."

The Ups and Downs

JIM GOODHEART'S IDEA.

JIM GOODHEART, of Denver, Colo., has an idea. He has just announced that he is going to give a picnic, which is to be called the Ups and Downs' Picnic. The purpose is to get together as many people who have prospered in life as can be induced to attend, and as many of those who have failed as may be attracted by the chance to meet their more fortunate fellows.

Most of us will feel inclined to laugh at Jim Goodheart's idea. We know, or we think we know, that the man who has prospered is convinced that the other fellow might have done so if he had possessed more skill and sense, and if he had tried a little harder.

And most of us know—or think we know—that the fellow who is down is prone to look enviously at the man who has won the prizes of life, and to credit him with nothing but uncharitableness and meanness.

The merit in the Goodheart idea lies in the fact that he may very probably show us that we are pretty far wrong.

Beneath the surface of character, all men are so much alike that a meeting of the Ups and Downs might easily prove enjoyable all around. The man who is a Down—who has worn that distinction by honest methods—knows that in the main nothing but hard work makes a man an Up; and the Down often enough gave up his chance of being an Up because he considered the price of being an Up somewhat extortionate. Contrariwise, the man who is a real Up must often look away to the refuges of the Downs and regret some of the things which they enjoy which he had to sacrifice in order to become an Up. Moreover, many a man would have been a Down, instead of an Up, if he hadn't been forced against his will to be an Up—and vice versa. A man's family often insist upon his being an Up; and often they insist upon his being a Down. So it can be seen that the whole thing is largely accidental. If Jim Goodheart will put all his Ups and Downs in a special uniform for the day, and give them something good to eat, and provide a little music, and give them plenty of fresh air and room to turn around in, we suspect that before the day is over it will be next to impossible for even the angels, much less Jim Goodheart and his henchmen, to tell an Up from a Down, and to get his guests back into their old grooves again.—Editorial from the St. Louis Times, July 27, 1914.

The Only One

ONE bright day in autumn a lot of Problems were sitting by the roadside. They were financial, social, personal, civic and many others.

"I wish somebody would come along and solve us," said one Problem. "I'm getting frightfully tired."

At this moment a Reformer came along. "I will solve you," said the Reformer. "Take your turns. Line form on the right."

He tried thus to stimulate some excitement, but nobody moved.

"You can't fool us again," said one of the Problems. "We've seen you before."

The Reformer was followed by a Politician.

"I will solve you," said the Politician. "After you have made your campaign contributions I shall be glad to begin."

There being no enthusiasm and no contributions, he naturally went away and was, in turn, succeeded by a Psychologist, a Philosopher, a Political Economist, a Lawmaker and an Author. "Move on!" screamed the Problems. "We've seen your tricks before."

Then there came one so young, so fair, so attractive and so preoccupied that, although he did not seem to be profound, the Problems were all drawn to him.

"Solve us," said the Problems.

The stranger, who had been singing to himself, turned and shook his head.

"Nobody can do that," he replied. "They've all tried and failed. Besides, you ought not to be solved. Why, my friends, if you should all be solved you'd vanish, and there would be nothing interesting to live for. No, I won't solve you, but I will do something better—I will come nearer than anyone else in the world to telling you what you really are."

"Good!" said all the Problems, clapping their hands, for they perceived that he was the only real thing they had seen.

And then THE POET SANG TO THEM.
