The Practical Side.

The men whose Hoo-Hoo names appear in the notices below are out of work and want employment. This is intended as a permanent department of THE BULLETIN, through which to make these facts known. It is or should be read by several thousand business men who employ labor in many varied forms, and it can be made of great value in giving practical application to Hoo-Hoo's central theme of helping one another. It is hoped the department will receive very careful attention each issue.

The Orange Concatenation.

Vicegerent W. F. McClure held a concatenation at Orange, Texas, on May 12; or, rather, two concatenations—one on May 12 and the other on May 13—for the affair was a sort of double-decker, owing to a combination of peculiar circumstances which no man could have foreseen or averted. Happily, no harm was done, and "all's well that ends well." Fourteen regular and two honorary members were initiated at the first meeting and two regular members at the second, these latter blind kittens having put up a stout plea to be taken in, despite the fact that they had arrived too late for the regular meeting; and, seeing their acute distress, the Vicegerent and his able assistants heeded their prayers and held a second concatenation. This Orange meeting came near being a comedy of errors all around, and ended by being a dazzling success, even for the "Lone Star State," which has made a most notable record this year. The trouble began with the trunk. If there is anything the Scrivenoter's office prides itself on, it is its ability to handle the trunk business; and this is no small matter, either, seeing that the Order has only eleven trunks, all told, two of which are permanently on the Pacific Coast, leaving nine available trunks for use at concatenations all the way from Maine to Florida and from Norfolk, Va., to Denver, Col. To get these trunks around promptly it is frequently necessary to move them by wire, like a train dispatcher; for it is not always practicable to send a trunk from this office, for the reason that this office is frequently minus a single trunk. It was, therefore, a matter of congratulation to us when we found ourselves in position to send a trunk direct from this office to Orange. We started it ten days ahead of time, routing it by way of New Orleans. This trunk was in some inexplicable manner lost by the express company somewhere between New Orleans and the rest of the world. Immediately upon learning of this misfortune we started another trunk; and Brother George Roll Call, of Orange, who had done valiant service in working up the meeting, proceeded to heat the wires red-hot in an effort to locate the lost trunk. He spent $9.99 in telegrams, not counting the wear and tear on his nerves and the number of "cuss" words with which he relieved his feelings. In the nick of time the lost trunk turned up, and then came the news that a wreck had occurred on the Southern Pacific Railroad about nineteen miles east of Orange, by reason of which a train load of Hoo-Hoo and several blind kittens were side tracked in Black Cat Swamp. The first intimation of this dire calamity came in the form of a telegram about a yard long (we think it was sent collect, but are not sure) from the unfortunate kittens to Mr. Call, bewailing their sad predicament in being "so near and yet so far." Immediately following this dolorous message came a lengthy telegram from the Snark of the Universe, who was likewise detained on account of the wreck. By this time Mr. Call and Vicegerent McClure were in a most angelic frame of mind, and vied with each other in quoting appropriate passages of Scripture and choice selections of classic verse. It was 3:30 A.M. before the train finally rolled in, and by that time the concatenation was over and the newly-made Hoo-Hoo were disporting themselves gaily "on the roof." Hence the second concatenation. Now, as luck would have it, the second trunk—the one we sent when the other was reported lost—was on the side-tracked train; and if they had but known it, the belated brethren might have held a concatenation while they waited. However, it was all right, anyhow, and the two concatenations add another feather to Vicegerent McClure's cap, already gorgeously bedecked. No one man can do all the work at an affair like that, however, and the Vicegerent's able assistants deserve a world of praise. These included the entire membership of Orange, headed by Brothers George Roll Call and B. C. Miller. Brother Call acted as Scrivenor at both concatenations, and the way his papers show up proves him to be a man of marked ability.

The following letter from Vicegerent McClure shows how much he appreciates the open-handed hospitality of the Orange people:

"Galveston, Texas, May 14.—Mr. J. H. Baird, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Brother: I herewith hand you a clipping from the Galveston 'News' of even date regarding the affair at Orange. Too much cannot be said in praise of the Orange people in caring for us on this occasion. While this clipping gives a brief history of our doings at that point, it is certainly brief in my estimation; and I have asked Brother Rein, editor of the Orange 'Leader,' to give you a full detail of the concatenation. I would not feel that I have fulfilled all of my duties and would think that there has been something omitted if I was not given an opportunity to express my thanks to the local committee for the magnificent manner in which they entertained their friends, and desire to do so through our official paper.

"Yours fraternally,
W. F. MCCLURE."

The following is the clipping from the "News" of May 13:

"Yesterday morning W. F. McClure, Vicegerent of Texas, arrived from Galveston with a bodyguard—consisting of Capt. Ed. N. Ketchum, C. H. Moore, and about twenty other distinguished members of the Order of Hoo-Hoo—and at the proper time the keys of the city were handed over to him, with the assurance that they would open any door in the city or its environs, including those of the county jail and the city prison. Speeches were exchanged; and as a number of visitors had reached the city by other routes, all proceeded to the Elks' Hall, where the local committee made known its programme for the day. These keys being about 2 feet 8 inches long and of standard width and thickness, made from selected heart pine, were not exactly the correct thing for a watch charm; so, at the suggestion of Mr. Ketchum, they were suspended from a hook on the wall for a time, and the party took possession of an excursion boat that steamed down the river. Returning, dinner was served, and a second trip was made, this time upstream for several miles, in the course of which they were fortunate enough to look upon the largest number of pine and cypress logs that were ever boomed in a Southern river.

"A train pulled in from the west at 8:30 with several delayed members and candidates. Among the former were D. Tramway Call, ex-member of the Supreme Nine, and the grave and reverend Col. Mark Weiss, of Beaumont. After an imposing procession through the principal streets, more than seventy boarded the barge Charles Lee and were towed to Willow Point. The boats had no more than pulled in the stage plank when the signal was given to turn on the fireworks, and from that moment until the boats had tied up on their return, fully an hour, the atmosphere for hundreds of feet in every direction—above, broadside, astern, and bows—seemed ablaze with brilliant flashes of every hue and color that shot out from the upper and lower decks. An occasional dynamite bomb was exploded that fairly split one's ears. The brass band gave up in despair, for no wind instrument could live within range of such a din.

"As the boats swung into the wharf, everything was silent as a tomb. The night was perfect, and half the town lined the river bank to witness the display.

"The procession was re-formed, marched to the hall, and trouble for the kittens at once began. The initiation fee is $9.99, and one of the applicants submitted his application, and with it handed to the Scrivenor a bag of copper coins weighing about two and one-half pounds that upon close count was found to contain just 999 1-cent pieces.

"The serious part of the work over and the concatenation closed, the entire party returned to the boats; and as they floated away again, a banquet was served that was one of the most pleasant features of the gathering.

"Quite a number remained until this morning, and, with friends, had an excursion to Port Arthur on the steamboat Henrietta to-day."

The Orange "Leader," of which Brother C. M. Rein (No. 4450) is editor, has this to say of the occasion:

"The coming of great Hoo-Hoo to Orange on last Saturday marked an epoch in the history of that organization in this section, and future events will doubtless be dated from the time the great Black Cat came down from his home in the pine woods to shed the light of his glorious presence into the eyes of the purblind kittens who anxiously awaited his appearance. When it was decided to hold a concatenation here and Hoo-Hoo had graciously signified his willingness to be present and participate in the ceremony of removing the scales from purblind eyes, the local committee formed a determination to make this the greatest occasion of the kind ever seen, that to Orange might be awarded the palm for breaking all records in the history of the Order. They did their work well; and when the momentous event arrived, every detail of the elaborate arrangements was complete.

"Among the first arrivals on Saturday were W. F. McClure, Vicegerent Snark for Texas; Capt. Ed. Ketchum, chief of police of Galveston, and an ardent Hoo-Hoo; and 'Yellow Pine Charlie' Moore, one of the oldest members of the Order. Other visitors from both the east and west came in on the morning trains, and were taken in charge by the local members of the fraternity. The mayor and city marshal met the Vicegerent Snark and his trusty aides, and presented them with an enormous key, with the statement that every lock in the city would yield to its power, not even the rusty hinges of the jail or calaboose doors being impervious. The key was carved of yellow pine, and was too large for use as a watch charm; so, at the suggestion of the Hoo-Hoo chief of police of Galveston, it was hung in the hall in a conspicuous place, there to remain until Hoo-Hoo and his disciples took their departure.

"During the forenoon the visitors were taken out on the river, and went down to Miller's Mill and the 'Cut Off,' returning in time for dinner. In the afternoon they again embarked, and this time went up the river, being shown during this trip more pine and cypress logs than ever before seen bound at one time in a Southern river.

"Not until evening was there a single thing to mar the pleasant anticipation of the delights to come. Then it was learned that the train bearing the Snark of the Universe, Capt. George Locke, and a delegation of visitors from the east was delayed by a wreck on the road, and there was no chance for them to arrive in time for the festivities.

"The East Texas delegation came from Beaumont on a special, arriving just before the hour for beginning the preliminary ceremonies. They were met at the depot by Max Miller's 'Hobo' Band and a committee of local Hoo-Hoo. Forming in line, they marched from the depot to the hall, the band making such music as delights the ear of Hoo-Hoo; while the weird, ear-splitting, peace-disturbing Hoo-Hoo yell occasionally rang out in a volume of sound that permeated the city from center to circumference. A most conspicuous figure in this procession was D. Tramway Call, without whom a concatenation in Texas would be like Shakespeare's immortal play with Hamlet left out. Perched on his shoulder in all the complacency of his important position was 'Number 9,999,' of whom every kitten has a distinct recollection.

"Arriving at the hall, the members of the Order and those whose eyes were soon to be opened formed in line, marched downstairs, and went aboard the passenger barge Charles Lee, which awaited them at the dock. Nearly a hundred strong, they marched aboard the boat, and the signal was given to cast loose. As the barge in tow of a tug swung out into the stream, the din commenced, and the hundreds of spectators who lined the shore were given an opportunity to witness the greatest pyrotechnic display ever seen in Texas. At Willow Point the boats turned again toward the city, and Hoo-Hoo began his triumphal entry into the domain soon to enjoy the delights of his presence. Tongue nor pen is competent to describe the magnificent scene as the vessels swung around the bend and came into full view. On the roof of the barge, just in front of a big headlight, was an enormous transparency bearing the Hoo-Hoo symbol, a great black cat. From the lower and upper decks and from bow to stern the barge was a solid sheet of flame ascending to the heavens in every hue of the rainbow. Whole batteries of immense skyrocket, ets were touched off at one time and went hissing and screaming into the air in honor of Hoo-Hoo. Quantities of red fire, countless hundreds of Roman candles were being ignited, while at every minute the roar of a mighty dynamite bomb awakened the echoes and went reverberating across the water in a tremendous volume of sound. Not for one second was there a lull, and the wonder-struck spectators on the shore could compare the spectacle to nothing so much as a mighty warship with every gun belching flame. For a quarter of a mile the boats came slowly down the river in a perfect halo of light, and, arriving opposite the city, came to a stop, while the pyrotechnic display increased and the spectators gazed spell-bound upon the dazzling scene. Whole packages of Roman candles, batteries of skyrockets, and bunches of bombs were fired simultaneously; and as the display reached the height of its magnificent splendor, the familiar strains of 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight' rang out across the water, plainly audible above the din of exploding torpedoes, hissing skyrockets, and bursting bombs. Then, as the light died out, the Hoo-Hoo yell from a hundred throats came rolling across the water, and then in a silence almost painful the boats came stealing out of the smoke and fog, like ghostly forms, and glided to an anchorage, with hardly a ripple on the water; and great Hoo-Hoo had reached the scene of his operations for the night, his entrance into this favored domain having been the grandest and most gorgeous ever seen. Disembarking, the Hoo-Hoo and the purblind neophytes fled back into the hall, and trouble for the kittens soon began.

"With a complement of enthusiastic acolytes to assist in making things pleasant, the ball was set in motion, and soon eighteen purblind kittens were struggling along the rocky road that led to the final delights of great Hoo-Hoo. 'Keeping everlastingly at it brings success' is an adage that is peculiarly adapted to the ceremonies of Hoo-Hoo, and the kittens were kept everlastingly at it until, with great sighs of relief, they found refuge in the onion bed. This scribe knows all about it, for he was one of the kittens, and during the progress of his journey developed latent talents that had remained concealed in his make-up all these years, and perhaps would never have been brought to light had it not been for this timely visit of Hoo-Hoo. However, it's all over now, and he has no more kicks coming. He has gazed upon wonderful things and has tasted the delights of Hoo-Hoo, the recollection of which will never fade away so long as life shall last.

"The delayed train from the east came in about 3 o'clock in the morning, and a second concatenation was held, in which A. E. Chambers, of Lake Charles, and Robert Morgan, Jr., of Orange, were given an insight into Hoo-Hoo mysteries.

"At the close of the first concatenation all again boarded the barge Charles Lee, and, in tow of a tug, sailed down the river, while a magnificent banquet was served that made the kittens with newly-opened eyes forget all the trouble they had passed through. Max Miller's Mandolin Band accompanied them and discoursed sweet music, while the excursionists partook of barbecued meats of every description and all the side lights that go to make up an enjoyable Hoo-Hoo 'on the roof.'

"The Hoo-Hoo celebration came to an end just in time for the visitors to catch the west-bound train, and all voted it the grandest affair of the kind ever held, the visitors being enthusiastic over the completeness of the arrangements and the thorough manner in which the local committee had conducted the preliminaries."

NOTES FROM THE LOCAL PAPERS.

"Vinton's population was larger than ever in her history on Saturday night, when two passenger trains were 'laid out,' owing to the wreck. A number of enthusiastic Hoo-Hoo bound for the concatenation in Orange were here. Their chagrin was something to behold."

"Col. Mark Mexico Weiss, the globe-trotting lumberman, from Beaumont, was a prominent figure at the Hoo-Hoo concatenation last Saturday night, and expressed himself as being delighted with the magnificent fireworks display and other features of the entertainment provided by the local Hoo-Hoo. Colonel Weiss has recently returned from a tour of England, where he has been posting himself as to lumber conditions in that country.

"George A. Dasecomb, of the George C. Vaughn Lumber Company, San Antonio, dropped in Saturday in time for the Hoo-Hoo concatenation at night. His company are large operators, and buy extensively from mills at this place.

"F. W. Greer, the hustling young manager of the Texas Arm and Pin Company, spent the day in Orange last Saturday, having come over to attend the Hoo-Hoo concatenation on Saturday night and to electioneer a little during the day for some favorite candidates. He reports business flourishing with his company, who manufacture the Dewey arm, which is becoming so popular."

Vicegerent W. F. McClure evidently has in mind to make Texas the banner State of this Hoo-Hoo year, and to this end he has spared no effort. He is a young man of great energy, and endowed with that expansive largeness of nature characteristic of the native Texan. In a business way Mr. McClure has achieved a high position in railroad circles, being general freight and passenger agent of the Galveston, Houston and Harris Railroad, with headquarters at Galveston.

Comments on Concatenations.

Vicegerent H. W. Huntington held a concatenation at Birmingham, Ala., on April 28, initiating a class of twelve. The meeting was followed by the usual "session on the roof," and was in every respect a most enjoyable affair.

Vicegerent R. L. Queisser held a concatenation at Cleveland, O., on May 2, which was an extremely pleasant meeting. The State of Ohio is making quite a record this year, which is not surprising, considering the high order of ability which characterizes her two hustling Vicegerents.

Vicegerent G. R. Stafford initiated a fine class of men at his concatenation at Chattanooga, Tenn., on May 7. The meeting occurred during the spring festival. Six happy kittens were guided along the sinuous paths of the onion beds, and afterwards regaled themselves on the roof. Mr. Stafford is to be congratulated upon the high standard of his candidates.

Brother William Curphey, of the Curphey Lumber Company, of Vicksburg, Miss., acting for Vicegerent J. J. Hayes, held a concatenation at Jackson, Miss., on May 4, at which eight new members were added. On account of death in his family, Vicegerent Hayes could not be present; but Brother Curphey proved himself an able lieutenant, and everything passed off smoothly.

Nine was the lucky number of members added at Vicegerent F. G. Snyder's concatenation at Shreveport, La., on May 12. It was an exceptionally fine class, and the meeting was conducted in that felicitous fashion that might be described as "Snyder's own." The candidates accumulated a considerable appetite during their progress through the gardens right and left, and one of them developed so abnormal a fondness for prunes that he was given the name "Prunes" in addition to the three others bestowed on him at his christening.

Vicegerent W. S. Wilson, of Georgia, held a concatenation at Philadelphia, Pa., on May 8. This sounds rather like a joke, but it is a fact, that the gentleman from the sand hills marched on the "City of Brotherly Love" and made a bloodless conquest. The whole thing came about by accident. Vicegerent F. T. Rumbarger, of Philadelphia, had set May 8 as the date of his concatenation, and had made strenuous efforts in working up the meeting. He was, unfortunately, taken suddenly ill. The candidates were ready and anxious to go in, the preparations were all made; but there was no one to take the initiative. At this crisis the gentleman from Georgia, who happened to be passing through on his way to New York, came to the rescue, and turned into a brilliant success what might have proved a most awkward situation. In this he was rendered valuable assistance by Brother James N. Holloway (No. 7182), of the Holloway Lumber Company, of Philadelphia, who acted as Scrivenor, and made an exceptionally fine officer. Brother F. A. Kirby, Vicegerent for Maryland, acted as Senior Hoo-Hoo at this concatenation. Six good men were initiated, and Brother Wilson is to be congratulated upon his ability to rise to an emergency.

Vicegerent H. C. Shreve's concatenation at Cincinnati, O., on May 3 ranks among the notable meetings of this most successful Hoo-Hoo year. The National Hardwood Lumber Association was in session at the time, and many prominent lumbermen were present. Ex-Snark of the Universe N. A. Gladding was one of those officiating at the concatenation, as were also W. E. Barnes and Col. A. D. McLeod. Brother Cliff S. Walker took the part of Junior Hoo-Hoo in his own peculiarly happy style. Twenty-four as good men as ever assembled at a concatenation were conducted into the mysteries and delights of Hoo-Hoo, and the refreshments served were just the sort calculated to most neatly hit the spot.

H. C. SHREVE,
VICEGERENT FOR SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF OHIO.

Vicegerent H. C. Shreve, under whose auspices this meeting was held, has displayed in his official career the same energy and enterprise that characterize his exploits in the business world. He is connected with the well-known poplar firm of Burt & Brabb Lumber Company, of Ford, Ky., and has charge of the sales of that concern. He has made quite an enviable record as Vicegerent, and his State is going to show up in fine style at the Annual Meeting.

Prospective Concatenations.

Vicegerent T. E. Dunn will hold a concatenation at Fargo, N. D., on June 7. Fargo is a pretty good Hoo-Hoo town. The boys out there are very enthusiastic, and they go at everything with that Western energy which insures success.

Brother N. Gregertsen (No. 6269), of Brunswick, Ga., is working up a concatenation to be held at that place on June 28. Brother Gregertsen helped to hold a most successful concatenation at Brunswick last year, and the ability and energy he displayed on that occasion augur well for the success of the forthcoming meeting.

We are just in receipt of advice that there is going to be a mammoth concatenation at Little Rock, Ark., on July 4, which will be one of the features of the big celebration which the "City of Roses" will have on Independence Day. Brother H. E. Miller (No. 6901) is chairman of the Board of Trade Committee on Hoo-Hoo, and through the energetic efforts of this brother and his associates the affair will probably eclipse all former occasions of the sort. A class of thirty or forty is expected. The railroads will make a one-fare rate from all points in the State, and a large attendance at the celebration is assured. It is the intention of the Little Rock boys to arrange at this festival for the party that will attend the Annual in Dallas, Texas, in October. It is hoped that a large contingent from Arkansas will be present at the Annual Meeting, and this idea of arousing interest in the subject is a good one. We hope the example set will be followed by members in other States. Brother William Starr Mitchell (No. 59), of the "Arkansas Democrat," will be the officer in authority at this concatenation on July 4.

Notes and Comments.

The new handbook has been mailed to all the members, and we are in receipt of numerous letters of congratulation, some of which indicate that the recipients of the book have figured out some interesting statistics. We publish below two of these letters, both from Vicegerents:

"Paragould, Ark., May 9.—J. H. Baird, Scrivenor, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Sir: My copy of the new handbook came to hand this morning. I note with pleasure that only one town in the State has more members than Paragould. Pine Bluff has twenty-five, and we have twenty-three; and I can say that, with perhaps one exception, all our members here are eligible, according to the latest rules and by-laws, and I am well pleased with our work in this line for the past two years.

"Yours,

G. B. MEISER, V. S."

"Cleveland, O., May 18.—Mr. J. H. Baird, Scrivenor, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Brother Baird: I am just in receipt of the Hoo-Hoo annual book. Running through the same casually, I note some very interesting facts. It is queer, as one looks through the long list of members, how many old friends one recalls who are scattered throughout the entirety of our land. In fact, since being appointed Vicegerent Snark, I have received letters from friends from whom I have not heard for over five years, and who saw my name in 'The Bulletin.' Hoo-Hoo indeed is great and his power far-reaching. In looking over the list of honorary members, I notice Ohio, as usual, heads the list. Out of a total of 41 members, Ohio has 14, or 34.1 per cent. Our dear old Cleveland has more than any one city—viz., a total of 7, which equals 17 per cent. of the whole. Out of a total membership of, approximately, 5,420, Ohio has 322, which equals 6 per cent, which, considering that Ohio is not a very great lumber-producing State, is certainly a very fair average.

R. L. QUEISSER."

The following interesting article in reference to the new handbook is from the "Lumber Trade Journal," of New Orleans:

"THE NEW HANDBOOK.

"The new Hoo-Hoo handbook has been issued to the members of the organization, and is fully up to previous editions in every respect. It contains a list of officers, members, the Constitution and By-laws, and all other information of use to those entitled to it. As a matter of interest, we here show the present condition of the Order as gleaned from this latest official publication:

"The Supreme Nine are distributed among the following States: Louisiana; Missouri; Massachusetts; Ohio; Tennessee; Nebraska; Mississippi; Wisconsin; and California.

"The House of Ancients now comprises six Past Snarks: R. A. Johnson, W. E. Barnes, J. E. DeFebaugh, H. H. Hemenway, A. A. White, N. A. Gladding.

"There are at present in active commission 42 Vicegerent Snarks.

"The inmates of the Osirian Cloister now number 106, while there are eligible to initiation 104 others.

"Of honorary members there are 41.

"Since the organization of Hoo-Hoo there have died 182 members, ranging from No. 1 to No. 6360.

"The membership is listed alphabetically and by number, and also by concatenations. There have been 620 concatenations in all, at which 7,269 members have been initiated. This is an average of a little more than ten to each concatenation.

"There are at present in good standing 5,318 members, distributed as follows: Alabama, 87; Arizona, 2; Arkansas, 324; British Columbia, 2; California, 206; Canada, 37; China, 1; Colorado, 97; Connecticut, 4; Cuba, 3; District of Columbia, 1; England, 4; Florida, 41; France, 2; Georgia, 252; Germany, 3; Idaho, 4; Illinois, 235; Indiana, 127; Indian Territory, 27; Iowa, 127; Kansas, 168; Kentucky, 157; Louisiana, 287; Maryland, 15; Massachusetts, 56; Mexico, 3; Michigan, 312; Minnesota, 116; Mississippi, 192; Missouri, 490; Montana, 5; Nebraska, 113; New Jersey, 7; New Mexico, 4; New York, 86; New Zealand, 1; North Carolina, 33; North Dakota, 32; Ohio, 322; Oklahoma, 71; Oregon, 36; Pennsylvania, 121; Philippine Islands, 1; Rhode Island, 1; South Africa, 1; South Carolina, 5; South Dakota, 2; Tennessee, 239; Texas, 333; Virginia, 35; Washington, 204; West Virginia, 12; Wisconsin, 275; Wyoming, 1. Total, 5,318."

Brother Bolling Arthur Johnson (No. 2), whose departure for Europe was announced in the last issue of "The Bulletin," is now at Ober-Ammergau, where he goes to procure data and illustrations for his forthcoming lecture on the "Passion Play." The following letter was received at this office on the eve of Brother Johnson's departure. We want to solemnly assure our readers that we believe every word of the story Brother Johnson tells, and we think our indorsement will settle the question of the truthfulness of the story, despite the well-known fact that our leading characteristic is that simple and childlike faith, as rare as it is beautiful:

"New York, May 12.—James H. Baird, Esq., Scrivenor, 615 Willcox Building, Nashville, Tenn.—My Dear Jim: I sail to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

"I have got a very pretty story to tell you, but I have not got the time. The brief of it is that I thought the North German Lloyd steamship agents were trying for six whole weeks to get me Room 79, but in their usual way they gave me Room 10, and thought that even that was great. Saturday, when I went into their office in New York to make some preliminary arrangements about my landing with my photographic supplies without getting into jail at the first dash, the agents formed a squre about me and commenced to make salams, and announced in several kinds of German—none of which was really good English, but could be understood—that at the last moment they had a beautiful fight with some man in the West who had insisted on Room 10, and that, thinking of me as a pleasant and agreeable fellow, they had agreed to put me in Room 9 in the hope that I would not object.

"Of course the rank and file of Hoo-Hoo would never believe this story; I am not telling it to you to believe; but it is the truth. Very truly, your friend,

"BOLLING ARTHUR JOHNSON."

Here is an invitation which doubtless many of the brethren will be glad to accept:

"Berlin, Germany, April 30.—J. H. Baird, Esq., Nashville, Tenn.—Please take notice that on May 1 I will remove my office to No. 5 Kleine Reichenstrasse, Hamburg. As I believe many members of the Order will come over to the old country to see the Paris Exposition, I would like to have them call when passing Hamburg.

"MAX JULIUS RUDOLF PETERSEN (No. 6886)."

Brother Samuel R. Guyther, of Patterson, La., has blossomed out as the president of the Hoo-Hoo Drug Company (limited), and we are in receipt of a very handsomely engraved certificate of stock, adorned with cuts of the emblem of the Order. This certificate, however, is unfortunately blank, and we are not advised as to the extent or value of the stock we own in the concern. How-

"F. W. Greer, the hustling young manager of the Texas Arm and Pin Company, spent the day in Orange last Saturday, having come over to attend the Hoo-Hoo concatenation on Saturday night and to electioneer a little during the day for some favorite candidates. He reports business flourishing with his company, who manufacture the Dewey arm, which is becoming so popular."

Vicegerent W. F. McClure evidently has in mind to make Texas the banner State of this Hoo-Hoo year, and to this end he has spared no effort. He is a young man of great energy, and endowed with that expansive largeness of nature characteristic of the native Texan. In a business way Mr. McClure has achieved a high position in railroad circles, being general freight and passenger agent of the Galveston, Houston and Harris Railroad, with headquarters at Galveston.

Comments on Concatenations.

Vicegerent H. W. Huntington held a concatenation at Birmingham, Ala., on April 28, initiating a class of twelve. The meeting was followed by the usual "session on the roof," and was in every respect a most enjoyable affair.

Vicegerent R. L. Queisser held a concatenation at Cleveland, O., on May 2, which was an extremely pleasant meeting. The State of Ohio is making quite a record this year, which is not surprising, considering the high order of ability which characterizes her two hustling Vicegerents.

Vicegerent G. R. Stafford initiated a fine class of men at his concatenation at Chattanooga, Tenn., on May 7. The meeting occurred during the spring festival. Six happy kittens were guided along the sinuous paths of the onion beds, and afterwards regaled themselves on the roof. Mr. Stafford is to be congratulated upon the high standard of his candidates.

Brother William Curphey, of the Curphey Lumber Company, of Vicksburg, Miss., acting for Vicegerent J. J. Hayes, held a concatenation at Jackson, Miss., on May 4, at which eight new members were added. On account of death in his family, Vicegerent Hayes could not be present; but Brother Curphey proved himself an able lieutenant, and everything passed off smoothly.

Nine was the lucky number of members added at Vicegerent F. G. Snyder's concatenation at Shreveport, La., on May 12. It was an exceptionally fine class, and the meeting was conducted in that felicitous fashion that might be described as "Snyder's own." The candidates accumulated a considerable appetite during their progress through the gardens right and left, and one of them developed so abnormal a fondness for prunes that he was given the name "Prunes" in addition to the three others bestowed on him at his christening.

Vicegerent W. S. Wilson, of Georgia, held a concatenation at Philadelphia, Pa., on May 8. This sounds rather like a joke, but it is a fact that the gentleman from the sand hills marched on the "City of Brotherly Love" and made a bloodless conquest. The whole thing came about by accident. Brother F. A. Kirby, Vicegerent for Maryland, acted as Senior Hoo-Hoo at this concatenation. Six good men were initiated, and Brother Wilson is to be congratulated upon his ability to rise to an emergency.

Vicegerent H. C. Shreve's concatenation at Cincinnati, O., on May 3 ranks among the notable meetings of this most successful Hoo-Hoo year. The National Hardwood Lumber Association was in session at the time, and many prominent lumbermen were present. Ex-Snark of the Universe N. A. Brother Samuel R. Guyther, of Patterson, La., has blossomed out as the president of the Hoo-Hoo Drug Company (limited), and we are in receipt of a very handsomely engraved certificate of stock, adorned with cuts of the emblem of the Order. This certificate, however, is unfortunately blank, and we are not advised as to the extent or value of the stock we own in the concern. However, we presume it is all right, and shall patiently await the receipt of our share of the dividends. The other officers of the Hoo-Hoo Drug Company are: B. F. McCrary, vice president; R. L. Riggs, secretary and treasurer. We wish this enterprise the greatest success, and herewith extend our thanks for having been let in on the ground floor.

The following clipping from a Southern paper would seem to indicate that Hoo-Hoo has a rival:

"It is greatly to be regretted that Crescent City necessitates such a lengthy sea trip, for under other circumstances Hoo-Hoo would long ago have extended its realm of joviality to that prosperous Del Norte County lumbering center. To overcome this sad deficiency, the local Del Norte lumbermen have formed a society at the Old Mill, known as the 'Lake Earl Society of Mill Men.' The following officers were appointed and elected for the first six months: J. D. Glidden, president; William Munsey, superintendent; J. W. Hunt, timekeeper; Mrs. L. McVay, paymaster; Elmer Lind, foreman; William Walkfield, guardian; I. B. Elgerton, night watchman; A. H. Block, engineer; M. Stevens and Mrs. Florence M. Hunt, swamper; Mrs. E. Elgerton, cook; and Budd McVay, waiter. After the officers were elected and installed, Mr. Glidden, who is the originator of the society, presented them with the secret work. It has a very interesting opening and closing ceremony and a very impressive initiatory work. The society is composed entirely of men who are engaged or employed in the lumbering business and their wives, daughters, mothers, sisters, or widows. Its object is both social and beneficial, there being a weekly allowance for disabled members. It is founded on a sound basis, and we think it will become one of the leading societies of Del Norte County. There would have been some difficulty in Hoo-Hoo passing upon the wives and daughters, but the men would have been right welcome. All Hoo-Hoo wishes its rival (?) great success."

We are in receipt of a calendar from J. A. Adams & Sons Company, of Warren, Ark., manufacturers of tight-barrel staves. The calendar is adorned with a cut of the company's plant and portraits of the members of the firm, including little Pat Adams, "future President." Pat is a handsome little fellow, apparently about five or six years old. We wish the firm much prosperity, and trust Pat will make a good President when he comes into his estate.

The following courteous letter explains itself:

"Princeton, Ind., April 22, 1900.—Dear Brother: I want to perform a neglected, but very pleasant, obligation—that of a 99-cent contribution to the Permanent Relief Fund. No doubt many of the older members, like myself, have overlooked the matter in press of current business, and it would be, in my opinion, a kindness to them were their attention again specially called to it. The limited contribution is so small and the benefits to some fellow-member in misfortune so great that I know all would, like myself, feel it a pleasant, although neglected, obligation.

"Sincerely,
NORMAN H. CHAMBERLAIN
(No. 5090)."

The following views on how to succeed are from an article in the "National Magazine," published by Brother Joe Mitchell Chappel (No. 1213):

"Most people, having attained eminence of any kind, are immediately prepared to tell others what means they must employ in attempting to do likewise, forgetting that no two lives run parallel, either successfully or disastrously. There is no cut-and-dried method to be employed by those anxious to make the best of the unsolicited lives bestowed upon them, because no mechanical principles of success work out in order unless the necessary basic characteristics upon which all such processes are built can be furnished along with the patent modus operandi. A business man can instruct aspirants for his kind of success hourly, yearly, giving the best of his own experience to willing minds, which at the first independent opportunity (owing to an individual lack of certain elements elusive and almost indefinable, indigenous to the instructor's nature, impossible to the pupil) make pitiful failures, although standing upon those same principles of success. Preminent success is set in motion by a genius for making the best and most attractive of whatever is undertaken. Like all genius, this mastering force is born with the man, possessing an essence no finger can touch, but every being feels. In lieu of a more definite term, this essence must be called 'charm'—that power which draws everything and everybody its way. The impelling power is successful, no matter where it be placed—in drawing-room or stock exchange, Senate Chamber or police court, newspaper office or in Archey Road. The successful serpent has it; the successful artist has it; the successful preacher or actor has it; Robert Louis Stevenson used it to wonderful purpose, and so does the devil every day."

There is small consolation in being told that the secret of success lies in a subtle essence called "charm." Huxley's definition of the thing is more to the point. In the straightforward way characteristic of scientific writers he says: "Three things are essential to success in life—energy, steadfastness, and the power to resist fatigue. The most important of these is the power to resist fatigue." Yes; that's it. The man who gets tired too soon is the one who gets lost in the shuffle, and the man who was born tired might just as well have been born dead. The power to resist fatigue depends on one's inherent strength and the sort of life he leads. There is no place in the world for the man who weakens this power by dissipation or excesses. The man who gets on a howling drunk every now and then will soon find that he has little power to resist fatigue, and he will have lost the prerequisite to success. The man who pounds away and does his very best under all circumstances is the one who "charms" the fickle goddess of fortune. "Keeping everlastingly at it brings success."

The Responses.

The following are the responses to the call for contributions to the Permanent Fund for Relief since the April issue of "The Bulletin." As it would involve considerable expense to send a receipt to each man, acknowledgement of these contributions is made in this way. More than half of the contributions received have been for $1, instead of the 99 cents mentioned in the call, and have been so credited on the books. The aggregate of the contributions up to the hour "The Bulletin" goes to press is $843.03.

Obituary.

Brother T. B. Balthrope (No. 3375), of Natalbany, La., died in New Orleans on March 28 of Bright's disease, from which he had been a sufferer for several years.

Thomas Benjamin Balthrope was born in Missouri in 1859. His father afterwards moved to Kentucky, which Brother Balthrope always claimed as his native State. At the time of his death Brother Balthrope was connected with the Natalbany Lumber Company, of Natalbany.

Brother W. M. Corwin (No. 5004), of Little Rock, Ark., died on May 2 at the Baptist Sanitarium, at St. Louis, where he had been for some weeks for treatment for a complication of ailments, principally heart trouble.

William Marion Corwin was born at Antwerp, O., on August 5, 1862. He was for some years connected with the St. Louis Machine and Oil Company, and had many friends throughout that section.

Brother E. C. Doughtie (No. 5073), of Americus, Ga., died suddenly of congestive chill, at Manassas, Ga., on April 17. He had been out hunting all day the day before, and appeared to be in his usual health. He took the chill at 9 o'clock P.M., and died at 7:30 the next morning. His remains were interred at Americus, Ga.

Eugene Charles Doughtie was born at Eufaula, Ala., on October 22, 1862. At the time of his death he was connected with the firm of Paul Jones & Co., of Louisville, Ky.
